

President Dancy resigns; Dowling takes over office

by KAY OWENS

Richard Dancy, SGA president resigned Nov. 12 at 3 p.m. because of "academic reasons," according to Pat Dowling, succeeding president.

Earlier this semester, Dancy replaced Billy Lyons as president and Randy Alley, past president protempore, became the vice president. However, Alley resigned his position because of academic reasons and Dowling moved into the vice presidency.

DOWLING, sophomore, and Chris Smith, freshman, as vice president, will head the executive branch of the SGA next semester. Karen Henry, newly elected president protempore is the first female to hold the office.

Dowling explained that he will be eligible to run for the presidency next year because he will have completed 45 academic hours and approaching his junior year. Chris Smith will not be able to run for the vice presidency because he will not possess SGA constitutional requirements.

DOWLING STATED that there is no stipulation in the constitution that forbids Smith from taking the vacant position.

Dowling attributes the student government's disorganization to the three resignations that have occurred over the past few months. He also stated that the SGA has never had a complete senate this semester. Twenty-eight seats are available and there are only 20 senators. "Part of this is due to Smith, Henry, and I vacating our senate positions to serve on the executive branch," he said.

"Some of the senators do not realize their responsibilities. But that will be mended over the Christmas holidays." Dowling has arranged a "planning session" to familiarize senators with their obligations and duties.

DOWLING'S tentative plans include a workshop cosponsored by the Alumni Association. Also, Mark Stephens is in charge of a petition to be signed by students concerning the construction of four traffic lanes on Harts Island Road.

Definite plans consist of the installation of the stereo sound system in the Snack Bar.

AN ACADEMIC Appeals Board will be composed of faculty and students who will hear complaints about professors and or examinations and review the cases to make final decisions concerning the cases. Board guidelines will be submitted to the administration during the end of January.

Dowling concluded, "Two months ago I was President protempore. It is going to take a lot of adjusting but I believe that I will be an effective president and I'm sure that the senate will be a much more responsible body."

Administration defeats SAB proposed fee

by GINA GORDEY

The proposed change of the Student Activities Board (SAB) to charge 25 cents to patrons of the SAB-sponsored movies has been defeated by the administration, according to Jim Harvey, SAB president.

The charge would have been initiated in the spring semester to generate more revenue back to the SAB to provide additional activities for students.

JOE SIMON, director of Student Activities, explained the reasons for the defeated request. He stated that the SAB had received a $2,000 increase in their budget which was accorded to finance any additional programs. The budget was hiked from $21,000 to $23,000 for the fiscal year 1976.

Simon said that "The Chancellors' philosophy is to have as many activities as possible with out charging the students a fee, and we really have adequate funds to do what we want now." He added that the students now pay a percentage of an activity fee when they register.

OTHER REASONS for the decision were that the Science Lecture Auditorium (SLA) does not have an adequate sound system, which was originally constructed for lecture purposes, and that seats were not constructed for comfort for any long periods of time.

Harvey said that the SAB considered these conditions when reaching their proposed charge of 25 cents. "Some universities charge up to $1 for their movies," Harvey said.

DR. JIMMIE SMITH, vice chancellor of Student Affairs explained that if the change were to come about, an income amount would have to be established for the SAB. This procedure would enable the funds made by the movie prices to be placed in the University's general fund. Therefore, the SAB would only receive more revenue through a budget increase, which has already taken place this year.

"As long as we can afford it, we want to hold all of the students' costs down," he said. He added that the University tries to adhere to this policy by not charging for catalogues, handbooks, changing and adding courses and parking fees.

HARVEY REMARKED that the SAB "was saddled with programs scheduled by last year's programs council, and the fees were only proposed to aid the SAB in bringing in more quality films." We won't be charging students now, he said but when the University Center is built the charge will probably be close to $1 for the movies."

Other SAB plans include participating in Glamour magazine's 1977 Top Ten College Women Contest. The contest is for young women in colleges and universities throughout the country to compete in the magazine's search for ten outstanding students. The winners are chosen on the basis of their solid records of achievement in academic studies and/or extra curricular activities. The SAB will be interviewing any interested applicants in the near future and will submit LSUS's representatives in the contest.

The 1977 Top Ten College Women will be featured in Glamour's August College Issue. During April, May or June, the winners will be invited to New York to meet the Glamour staff and will receive a $500 cash prize.

Caddo Parish Coroner

Dr. Willis Butler donates files to archives

Dr. Willis P. Butler Sr. has recently resigned from the office of Caddo Parish Coroner and has agreed to turn his files over to the LSUS historical archives.

These files include not only all the coroner case records of Dr. Butler's 54 years of service, but also a collection of his personal papers dealing with his office tenure. Of particular importance are papers concerning the experimental drug program conducted by the coroner's office in the 1920's.

THE CORONER'S office not only signs death certificates, but goes to court when a case involves medical testimony. He also signs the papers necessary to commit mental patients and carries out experimental drug and alcoholic programs.

Dr. Butler was born in 1888 and graduated from the Vanderbilt University Medical School in 1911. He became Caddo Parish coroner in 1921. He resigned the office in 1973, only to return a year later to serve another two years. He has served as Pathological and Laboratory director at Schumpert, Willis-Knighton, Highland, and Veteran's hospitals.

Hubert Humphreys, coordinator of the LSUS historical archives, sees the files as "very valuable because no other set of coroner papers are so well preserved. These records will give a worthwhile insight into the history of the Shreveport area."

Hall says,

Don't touch

The weather station put up at LSUS in September will be used for educational purposes only next semester, until a fence can be erected around it. After it's been enclosed it will be used for official reporting of precipitation with the results sent daily to the weather bureau at the airport, according to Dr. John W. Hall, chairman of the Social Science department.

"THE WEATHER station was initially set up for official purposes to report precipitation to the airport weather bureau but so many curious, students tampered with the station that the results were messed up. I don't think the students were being malicious since nothing was taken," said Dr. Hall.

"Many students were curious as to what the apparatus was—some asked me if I was keeping bees in it—and so investigated on their own. Until we get an enclosure around the station it will be used for educational purposes only. We'll still keep records of the results, though," said Dr. Hall.

Almagest reminisces

The semester is finally over and with it goes the memories of three executive resignations, a disorganized senate and the hope that next semester's president will straighten out all the problems and not be the laughing stock of the University.

Although the Student Activities Board (SAB) has stumbled across administration problems their program has surpassed all other entertainment committees.

The SGA Louisiana State Fair Booth, in cooperation with the SAU players, the Biology Department, and other campus clubs and organizations played an excellent role in the education exhibit during the fair.

A Caspiana Plantation home, the Big House, has been donated to the LSUS campus and Dr. Willis P. Butler, Caddo Parish retired Coroner, donated 54 years of files to the university's Archives.

Although a new Education Building and our Graduate Program were turned down in Baton Rouge we can still look forward to the University Center that will be constructed in the near future.

The Liberal Arts Colloquium was a success this semester. While familiarizing the students with the faculty, the subject matter, Role of Values in Higher Education, was presented by several prominent citizens outside the university.

The Almagest took on new responsibilities this semester with conflicts with Data Processing, The Business Office, and the Physical Plant, but we managed to supply the student body and faculty with fair and accurate reporting. The purpose of the Almagest is to be representative of the student body, voice our opinions to stimulate thought and to offer answers concerning controversy.

The Almagest will resume publication on Jan. 17, 1977 and as in the past, we will welcome student participation and student response.

An old man in red says 'Whaz hapnin'?

A Note of thanks

This is the last Almagest of the semester. Publication will resume in January.

As Editor-in-Chief, I would like to thank The Almagest, a group of hard-working students who developed into a dedicated, professional staff, of whom I'm very proud.

A special thanks goes to Gina Gordey and Denise Allen for helping me over the rough spots, working unpaid hours, and giving me encouragement that I needed to fulfill my job.

I would also like to express my deep gratitude to Dr. Robert Russell, Dr. Dalton Cloud and John Tabor for their guidance and assistance.

The Almagest Staff wishes to thank the Bossier Tribune Publishing Co., our printer, for their extreme patience and for all the help they rendered.

"THOUGH you'd never ask," he said. "My feet feel like they've been through fall registration at Alaska University in Baked."

His half-baked pun gave him away and I realized he was the famous North Pole Low Rider who had braved a Springhill sawdust storm last year to bring glad bags and "The Joy of Sex" to anyone who wanted them.

I TOLD him of my discovery and at first he denied it, claiming to be Millard Paprika, a used Almagest salesman from Eugene, Oregon. But when he couldn't tell me how much Dalton Cloud's NAACP dues were I knew he was not just a jive turkey in red underwear.

He finally admitted to being, as he called himself, "S.C.", and no, it doesn't stand for 'still cumstances beyond his control.

Then he read from his toilet paper list. "Jimmy Carter gets the presidency for Christmas this year." When I informed him of last month's election, his face turned marking-pencil red and he said, "Aw hell! Anything else will be like peanuts compared to that."

HE ADDED President Ford was getting a LOSE button so that he could have a matching set, in addition to a copy of the new book "Laughing All The Way To My Welfare Check" by Earl Butz.

Aside from political figures, S.C. mentioned some celebrities. "Let's see, here. Claudine Longet will get some Spider Man comic books. Tony Orlando will get some rhythm, Dawn will get some new joke writers and many people will get a survival kit, complete with eraser, foul language dictionary, a dead-horse beater (for the SGA stories).

"MARV Stottlemire will get a ruler, so that he can prove he gives his classes everything he's got.

"Billy Lyons will get an autographed copy of Richard Nixon's upcoming novel 'Resignation—The Ins And Outs.' And Richard Dancy gets it when Bill's through reading it."

HE SURPRISED me with his last statement.

"And you, son, will get a copy of that new Missouri CB magazine, 'The Missouri Break.' Everybody needs one now and then, and so does your writing."

Twas night before Finals

By PATTI KASSELMAN

"Twas the night before finals, and through the library
Not a person was stirring, and no one was merry;
The exams were locked in the cabinets with care,
In hopes that professors would please leave them there;
The students were buried all deep in their books,
Giving anyone who whispered a dirty look;
And he with his No-Doz and I with my tea,
Had sat up studying 'til a quarter past three,
When out in the mall there arose such a clatter,
I waddled from my chair, (since I'd gotten fatter).
Away to the glass doors I walked in a rush,
The handle fell off and my toe was crushed.
The glistening sun on the sidewalks below
Was as close as we got to new-fallen snow,
When I lifted my head and took a peek,
I could have sworn I saw someone streak.
It was a student-so cheerful and so fast,
I thought to myself—"he must have passed!"
Faster than pistons his legs as he came,
As he shouted his courses, each by its name;
No Physics! No English! No Microbiology!
No Speech! No Spanish! No Social Psychology!
To the middle of the garden, then down by the wall,
The next thing he knew he was there in the mall!
His eyes—they were bloodshot! His nose—how it ran!
And all over he had a Coppertone tan!
He stood there transfixed, he made not a sound,
And when I had courage, I turned around;
By then he had run, to the Snack Shack no less,
And what would be next was anyone's guess;
He was kicking and screaming, his money—he'd lost it!
Poor fellow—he wanted to buy some hot chocolate!
Then, streaking away in his argyle socks,
He cursed as he hit the gravel pit rocks.
He sprang in his car, and I heard as he hollered,
"This !+?-&! ticket will cost me two dollars!"
And as he drove off, he said with a leer,
"So long you flunkies, I graduated this year!"

Resolution 77-23—Ridiculous !

by KAY OWENS

During a recent SGA meeting the senate approved Resolution 77-23 by unanimous consent. Pat Dowling, SGA president and Delta Sig, vetoed the resolution. Submitted by Kappa Alpha's Mark Stevens, the resolution stated "SGA Senate Appeals Board be established with the power of screening possible applicants for the Senate. This screening process shall consist of seeking and researching new applicants and recommending to the president of the SGA a list of possible senators. If the President should reject this list the Appeals Board shall have the authority to submit the list to the Senate body for approval."

DOWLING SWIFTLY moved into the presidential seat this semester and has already begun organizing what seems to be an effective SGA.

Not at any time in the history of the LSUS SGA has there been three executive resignations in one semester's time and never before has a frat held the presidential post. So, Dowling is an all-time record breaker.

student body and the students are who elect the president, vice president and most of the senators. So if your favorite frat friend does not make it to the top there is no real need for alarm. In fact, the whole idea of Resolution 77-23 seems ridiculous.

Teachers receive master degrees

Thirteen area teachers next month will receive master of education degrees from LSU Baton Rouge through a program administered at LSUS, Dr. Vincent J. Marsala, dean of the College of General Studies, announced today. The students, who completed all course work at LSUS, will receive their degrees Dec. 21 during commencement exercises on the Baton Rouge campus. Listed by subject area, the students are: Supervision—Carrie J. English, Marilyn B. Williams and Sharon W. Ricke, of Bossier City. Secondary—Martha A. Allen. Administration—Patti M.

Melker, William K. Robinson and John W. Stephenson of Oil City. Guidance—Carrie G. Belle, Patricia M. Brand and Betty S. Nelson. Elementary Education—Elizabeth A. Bolton of Bossier City. Reading—Carolyn L. Mercer, of Bossier City and Brenda C. Weaver, of Haughton. The master of education program at LSUS is administered through the College of General Studies and offers degrees in elementary education, secondary education, administration, supervision, reading, and guidance and counseling.

DOM collects Toys for Tots

Delta Omicron Mu (DOM), LSUS' Veterans Club, is collecting items for Toys for Tots. Decorated boxes have been set up in the foyers of campus buildings for depositing any items contributed. The drive, already in progress, will continue through Dec. 13. The items need not be in perfect condition and "almost anything that can be mended" will be accepted, according to Dr. Carlos Spaht, DOM sponsor. Toys constitute the majority of the donations, but clothing and canned goods are also acceptable. TOYS FOR Tots is a city-wide project held each year and is headed by Sister Margaret McCaffrey, coordinator of the Christmas Service Program. She personally checks each family who is to be a recipient of the gifts to ascertain their need. The gifts are repaired, gift-wrapped and delivered to needy children in the Shreveport-Bossier area. Christmas dinners are also delivered to poverty-stricken families.

Television replaces annual Turkey Day celebration

by ELMER NEUTZLING

Never again, I promised myself, will my wife have to slave like she has the past two days to serve one meal. Beginning on Thanksgiving eve, she has stopped only for a few brief hours of sleep.

Cooking this, baking that, she has made wonderful smells emanate from the kitchen. Smells which have infested every corner of the house, have hammered home my terrific sense of guilt.

BUT THEN, the stupid parades over, it was kick-off time, and Dallas jumped right off to a good start over St. Louis.

From the refrigerator, she brought me ice-cold beer, a small platter of crackers if I was so inclined. The angelic smile on her face etched the guilt even deeper into my heart. Her silence in deference to the television condemned me. She ordered silence from her chief henchmen, the children; not to disturb the master at his sport.

AHHH, THE guilt crept into my mind, insinuating itself around my concentration. D—! An interception by St. Louis and I didn't even perceive it!

Vapors of turkey baking and hot apple pie bubbling lured my senses even further from the game. . . the meal would be ready soon. Naturally it was coming-up on half-time. If she hurried. . . but I couldn't do justice to her many hours of work in only twenty minutes.

Come on turkey, hold out for just one more hour, stall for time, make a goal-line defense! The end was nearing, however, and I knew it.

She then pulled the ultimate in depravity. Dressing our tiny daughter in her prettiest, frilliest dress, she sent her to the living room with a beer in her hand. I wanted to scream, to crawl to the kitchen on my knees, begging forgiveness. But no, I told myself, it is merely a ploy. . . she has mis-judged, and dinner is going to be ready during the third quarter.

"OUT," I commanded, pointing dramatically toward the hallway which leads to that den of iniquity, the kitchen. She, like her mother, merely smiles, ably concealing the satanic gleam beneath the soft glow of her liquid eyes.

Oh, for a knife to slit my wrists!

Third quarter beginning, and St. Louis is coming out strong. This looks like it might finally turn into a ball game.

THEN, SILENCE from the kitchen, a brief flurry of oven doors opening and closing, and I knew. Knew beyond a doubt that the Thanksgiving dinner was about to be served. Served during the third quarter of the most important game of the season, with Dallas apparently in trouble.

Silence from the dining room. Another ploy. . . because she knew that I knew, that dinner was ready, and was waiting to see if I would come of my own volition. Three minutes, five minutes, then she sent her minions. One 5, the other 7, dressed to the hilt, their cherubic faces agleam, they announced that the turkey was ready. I looked in shame at my dirty tee-shirt and blue jeans. I looked longingly at the television set. My God, St. Louis just scored and I didn't see it. Dallas is in trouble now!

FINALLY THE guilt won out, and I stood to begin the trudge to the bedroom to change, knowing that I wouldn't see the ending of this game which was turning into a cliff-hanger.

Resigned to my fate, I turned to leave the room, as my daughter, whispering mysteriously and satanically to my son, gleefully switched off the television set.

Next year, I shall take them all out to a nice restaurant, and be back before the game begins.

Varied program offered

by RENEE SLETTE

Next semester the Intramurals department will offer as varied a program as available this semester. Already the department has planned several tournaments, many of which were tentatively scheduled for this semester but failed to develop, due to the lack of student interest and a shortage of time.

THE FIRST thing on the agenda is the basketball league. This is scheduled to begin January 24, and the week to sign up is the first week of the spring semester. Already several teams have entered the league.

The bowling will continue, however the time and place are undecided. The only night Tebbe's is available for the LSUS league is Tuesday and this has caused a conflict with many of the students' schedules. The time and place will be announced as a later date.

ALSO SCHEDULED to begin this spring are the men's and women's softball league. Last year the Misfits won the men's title. The IM Dept. is taking teams for this also and teams and individuals may sign up early by going by Bronson Hall, room 130. A copy of the rules may be picked up here also.

Other things planned for next semester are tournaments in chess, tennis, horseshoes, golf and ping pong. There will be a volleyball league also.

To participate in these activities either teams and individuals should go by the IM office and pick up copies of the rules and an application.

Pool tournament planned

The first annual LSUS Pool Championship will be held tomorrow at Guys and Dolls, according to Tommy Brown, Student Intramurals director. Several people have already signed up for the contest, and the IM Dept. hopes the event will have a large turnout.

TODAY IS the last day for entrants to sign up but they will be allowed to sign up until 2 p.m.

There is a $2 entry fee for all those who sign up. This is to cover the cost of using the facilities at Guys and Dolls. The fee must be in today or the contestant will be ineligible to participate in the tournament.

To sign up go by the IM Dept. in Bronson Hall, room 130 or 142 and pay your $2. All information regarding the tourney is available on the bulletin board outside these rooms.

Misfits stop Independents, win championship playoff

The Misfits met Welsh's Independents Nov. 18 in a fast-moving championship basketball playoff. The game started swiftly as the Independents took the ball and tried for a score. The Misfits, however, did what they could to prevent this and made the first basket of the game.

The battle waged and the two teams were up and down the court, each trying desperately to gain possession of the ball. The first half was active and both teams were awarded free throws as the players fouled each other in their attempts to get ahead. The fouls apparently were costly to some.

THE INDEPENDENTS went into the game at a disadvantage, having only six players as opposed to the Misfits' ten. There were no substitutes, each player being committed to the entire game.

At halftime the Misfits led the Independents 48-27. The Independents were getting tired and it began to show as the fouls began to mount. By the end of the third quarter, two Independents had fouled out and another lacked one foul before he was out also.

MISFIT PLAYERS began dropping out as the Independents were fouled out and the number left in the game were now three Independents and four Misfits. The Independents closed in during the fourth quarter and at one point were only two points behind the Misfits. The final score in the game was 59-63, Misfits.

Reynolds recycles

During December, the Reynolds mobile aluminum recycling unit will be making two stops in Shreveport.

According to Dave Vardell, Reynolds Aluminum's District Manager for recycling, "Last month, the citizens of Shreveport brought 3,755 pounds of aluminum to the recycling unit. For their recycling efforts, they received $563.25 from Reynolds."

The public will receive 15 cents a pound for their clean, household aluminum every other Wednesday (Dec. 1 and 15, not Dec. 29 because of the holidays) from 2-4 p.m. at the Burnett Distributor, 1111 Burt,
